This two story stone commercial building lies at the west end of Ellicott City on the north side of Main Street. Three bays wide and two deep, the house has two brick chimneys on each gable end, and a standing seam metal roof. The chimney on the west gable end is flush, and that on the east gable end is external. The first floor of the south (main) facade consists of two large shop windows flanking a central door. The second floor had in a 1972 photo two 6/6 sash windows flanking a bible and cross paneled door. Now the windows have 1/1 sash. A new second floor porch, not extant in 1972, covers the front facade. The west gable end of the building has one opening towards the front of the first floor, now with an air-conditioner unit in it. The second floor has a 1/1 sash window in the south bay. The attic level has two small 1-pane casement windows in the gable.

To the east of the building is a shed-roofed stone commercial building, 3 bays wide with a central door flanked in 1972 by 2/2 sash windows. These windows have now been filled in with concrete, scored to simulate stone. Above these three bays were once three 2/2 sash windows. The westernmost of these, however, had been filled in with concrete even in the 1972 photo. The other two windows now have 1/1 sash.

The east gable end of this building is covered by a modern concrete block commercial building.

The rear of the gable-roofed commercial building is also covered with a concrete block addition.
